Josh Fox takes second in Tar Wars contest

The Kansas Academy of Family Physicians has announced its top winners in its annual Tar Wars poster contest. Ethan Quaney of Topeka placed first and Bennington fourth grader Josh Fox placed second.

Each year, Dr. Yoxall presents the Tar Wars program to BGS fourth graders. The students then create a poster with a theme to encourage students not to smoke.

Tar Wars was founded in response to the growing, yet preventable, health crisis of tobacco use. The program focuses on the short-term, image-based consequences of tobacco use and helps kids think critically about tobacco advertising.
